The play streets are proving among the most popular of centres. They are located in the immediate vicinity of the bomes of the children, and parents heve the assurance that.

of play for the Association, said to one.

"I am delighted that Miss Lewisohn has come forward on behalf of the children. On account of the war, it was practically impossible to go on with the work to any great extent. I am much opposed to unsupervised play. It tends toward creating the gangeter spirit.

"By having a supervisor on each of these streets, all that is bolsterous is eliminated, and the children are directed in the most beneficial channels. It is most interesting how these children of all nationalities and creeds in the thickly populated sections will join in the play spirit.

"They are encouraged to be considerate of each other and Tair play is the prime principle promoted. I think this is one of the solutions to the play problem, especially in the congested
